BODY:

Feb. 14--Retail software company Retalix (Nasdaq: RTLX; TASE: RTLX) soared 7 percent on high turnover in morning trading today, following reports in "Bloomberg" of rumors that it could be sold to US rival VeriFone Holdings Inc. (Nasdaq: PAY; TASE: PAY). In 2006 VeriFone acquired another Israeli retail software company, Lipman Electronics Engineering.

"Bloomberg" said that one of the sources of the report was investment house Clal Finance Batucha, which claimed that it heard that a sale offer was being mooted, even though no official announcement has been made to that effect.

Retalix has been the subject of speculation for some time and recent trading in its stock has reflected this. The company said in response that it would not comment on hearsay.
